ENGAGING HEARTS AND MINDS

WAYS TO BUILD A GREAT RELATIONSHIP WITH YOUR TEAM

By JACK CHUA

A leader who seeks to build great relationships with others needs to be both reliable and trustworthy. Through consistent and sustained interaction, building a relationship helps to create a foundation of trust.

The relationship can be established by being consistent in your actions and words. This consistency helps to build a pattern of predictability, which in turn builds trust.

Another way to build a relationship is through active listening. By actively listening to others, you show that you value their opinions and ideas. This helps to create a sense of respect and appreciation for others.

Building a relationship also involves being approachable. A leader who is approachable makes it easier for others to feel comfortable in approaching them.

Creating a positive work environment is also important. A work environment that is positive and supportive helps to create a sense of belonging among team members.

In conclusion, building a great relationship with your team is crucial for leadership success. By being consistent, actively listening, being approachable, and creating a positive work environment, you can build strong relationships with your team.

Jack Chua works as a recruiter in the field of pharmaceuticals. jackchua@leaderonomics.com
Share this article with your team today!